SPECIAL NOTE TO THE READER

There are many student financial aid opportunities to assist you in meeting educational expenses for college. However, funding sources are not unlimited. Obtaining financial assistance and the right type of aid for you will require timely thought, planning, and action on your part.

The best source for information and counseling about student aid is the financial aid office at the institution you wish to attend. There are many dedicated professionals who staff these respective offices with no other purpose in mind than to assure that every person who desires and can benefit from an education has the opportunity. The North Carolina postsecondary institutions, their addresses, and the phone numbers of the financial aid offices are listed in the Appendix.

This booklet is published by the North Carolina State Education Assistance Authority, an affiliated agency of The University of North Carolina. It is only a primer to the variety of financial aid programs which exist. With it you can become familiar with the major programs available to North Carolinians and be guided to the source that can help you apply. Although the variety and diversity of financial aid opportunities may appear somewhat bewildering at first, individual help is available. It is not necessary to use a commercial service that charges a fee to learn of all of the financial aid programs for which you may qualify. The information is free and available to you as close as your nearest high school guidance counselor or the financial aid office of the technical school, college, or university in your area. Remember that you may need to work during your postsecondary experience to help defray some of your expenses. Borrow only that which is absolutely necessary. Loans must be repaid out of your future income.

Obtaining an education beyond high school can be an exciting and rewarding adventure. We hope the information obtained in this booklet will be useful in directing you toward the realization of your educational goals.

TECHNICAL NOTE REGARDING
FEDERAL AND FEDERALLY-SUBSIDIZED PROGRAMS OF FINANCIAL AID

On July 23, 1992, President George Bush signed into law the "Higher Education Amendments of 1992" which were adopted a few days before by the second session of the 102nd Congress. The 1992 Amendments reauthorized until 1998 the basic law affecting the role of the federal government in making a college level education possible for all. The first major effort in this public policy arena occurred at the end of the Second World War with the G.I. Bill. In 1965, the Higher Education Act of 1965 was passed. Since then, that Act has been reauthorized in five-year segments.

The 1993-98 segment makes many significant alterations, changes and additions to the federal efforts to make postsecondary education for all possible. Some are authorized but not funded, given the economic circumstances of the times. We have attempted in this booklet to reflect all the changes that were known and interpreted by the U.S. Department of Education as of the end of October 1992. Any difference may be attributed to the timing of this booklet's publication and later events to implement the 1992 Amendments.

STUDENT FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE AVAILABLE TO RESIDENTS OF NORTH CAROLINA

Compiled by
North Carolina State Education Assistance Authority

General Information

There are four principal types of financial aid available to residents attending postsecondary institutions: (1) scholarships or grants which are awarded outright to the student and which do not have to be repaid; (2) loans which a student must repay after leaving college (some have cancellation clauses for work in specific professional careers or military service); (3) employment, which in some instances may be in work that is related to the student's field of study; and (4) entitlement programs which have education assistance benefits as a result of service and contributions by individuals.

To meet a student's financial need, most institutions make aid available in a combination of loan, grant, and work. This is referred to as "packaging aid," and it is generally felt that students should be expected to work for a reasonable portion of their expenses, borrow modestly against their future earnings, and receive a portion of expenses in gift aid to help meet the remaining total costs after the family contribution. It is also expected that the family contribute the maximum financial effort which can be afforded from disposable income and assets toward the costs of education. The amount of the award generally depends upon the financial need of the student (as determined by a comparison of available family financial resources against the costs of education) and the availability of funds from the particular source.

Each institution has its own application deadline for programs. In most instances, an annual application is required to participate in financial aid. Financial aid applications usually should not be completed prior to January 1 of the year in which the student plans to enroll, but planning should begin sooner.

In addition to federal, state, and institutional financial aid programs, there are numerous other sources of aid which may be available to students. Many local clubs and civic organizations make awards directly to students and select their own recipients. Such awards may or may not be based on financial need. The best source of assistance in locating such financial aid programs in your area is through your high school guidance counselor or through the financial aid office of the institution you plan to attend.

An index by program name is found on pages 45 and 46.

FEDERAL FINANCIAL AID PROGRAMS

In addition, the student receives a tax-free subsistence allowance of up to $1,000 per year for each year the scholarship is in effect. Scholarships may be applied at some 1,000 colleges and universities. ROTC Scholarship benefits are not diminished based on other financial assistance earned by students.

Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship Program (Formerly the Federal Merit Scholarship Program)

This is a federally-funded program established to promote student achievement and to recognize exceptionally able students who show promise of continued excellence.

Eligibility: Recipient must be a graduate of a public or private secondary school in North Carolina or have the equivalent of a certificate of graduation and be accepted for enrollment at an institution of higher education. Byrd scholars are selected on the basis of demonstrated outstanding academic achievement and promise of continued academic excellence. The scholarship is not restricted to any academic area and may be used to attend any institution of higher education in the country. Financial need is not a selection criterion.

Value: To the extent practicable, an equal number of scholarships will be awarded from each North Carolina Congressional District annually. The maximum annual award is $1,500 and may be renewed for up to four years of undergraduate study.

Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship Program (cont'd.)

Application Procedure: Applications are available from high school principals and guidance counselors of public and private high schools in North Carolina. A student must be nominated by the school he/she is attending or plans to attend in order to be considered for the award. Recipients are chosen by regional selection committees and are notified of their selection prior to the end of the academic year.

Department of Defense Voluntary Education Program

Each of the four services, Coast Guard, and Selected Reserve service components operates its own voluntary education program.

Eligibility: Be a member in good standing of the regular Army, Air Force, Navy, Marines, Coast Guard, or the Selected Reserve Component of any one of these services, have the signed permission of the base Education Services Officer or Reserve Training Officer, have served an established number of continuous days of active duty, and meet such other criteria as the individual service may have established.

Value: Tuition Assistance (TA) reimbursement equal to a predetermined percentage of the total cost of tuition for single course pursuits. Paid after-the-fact if the course is passed satisfactorily.

For other educational assistance programs available to active duty military and their dependents, consult the section of this publication entitled Veterans Educational Assistance Programs.

Federal Pell Grant Program

This program awards grants directly to students with payment made through institutions. Federal Pell Grants are the "foundation" of student aid to which aid from other sources may be added.

Eligibility: Student's financial need is determined by using a Congressionally-approved formula applied to all applicants which takes into consideration family financial circumstances and the cost of education. The formula produces a Pell Grant Index (PGI) which is used by the institution to determine the amount of the Federal Pell Grant. Eligible students must be enrolled in an approved postsecondary institution, working toward a first baccalaureate degree.

Value: Amounts vary and are awarded on the basis of need and enrollment status, length of enrollment and cost of education at the school the student attends. The maximum annual award for 1993-94 is $2,300; the minimum award is $400.

Application Procedure: Student applies for a Federal Pell Grant by filling out a financial need analysis form using one of the Multiple Data Entry (MDE) processors accepted by the school the student plans to attend. The Federal Pell Grant is included as part of his/her total financial aid package. The 1993-94 application must be received by May 1, 1993. Annual application is required. See your high school guidance counselor or college financial aid officer if you have questions about applying for a Federal Pell Grant.

Federal Perkins Loan Program

Created in 1958, this program was formerly known as the National Direct or National Defense Student Loan program. This was the first major effort of the federal government to assist students in enrolling in a college or university program since the Veterans' Readjustment Acts.

Eligibility: Student must be enrolled full or part time in an undergraduate or graduate program at a postsecondary institution participating in the Perkins program. Student must be a citizen or permanent resident of the United States. Student must provide driver's license numbers at the time of loan application. Borrowers over 21 will be subject to a credit history check.

Value: The Federal Perkins Loan is low-interest (5%) and is based entirely on need, as determined by the financial aid office. The new annual loan limits provide a maximum of $3,000 per year for undergraduates and $5,000 per year for graduates. An aggregate amount of $15,000 may be borrowed for undergraduate and $30,000 for graduate study. The amount the student borrows depends upon need and availability of funds.

Application Procedure: Student applies through the financial aid office of the institution he/she plans to attend.

Repayment: Student signs a promissory note upon receipt of each loan and must begin repayment nine months after graduation or leaving school. Student has up to ten years for repayment. Part of the Federal Perkins Loan will be cancelled for each year the recipient is a full-time special education teacher, teacher of mathematics, science, foreign language, or bilingual education; a full-time nurse or medical technician; a full-time employee of a family service agency providing services to high-risk children; for employment in a criminal justice field; a Peace Corps volunteer; or a member of U.S. Armed Forces serving in an area of hostility.

Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant Program (FSEOG)

Eligibility: A student must have exceptional financial need to qualify for an FSEOG award. The amount of financial need is determined by the educational institution the student attends. The award is available only to undergraduate students. Recipients must be citizens or permanent residents of the United States.

Value: The value of the award is determined by the need of the recipient and the available funds. An award may not be less than $100, and the maximum award is usually $4,000 per year. If reasonable study abroad costs exceed the cost of attendance at the home institution, the amount of the grant may exceed the $4,000 maximum by $400.

Application Procedure: Student applies for an FSEOG award by filling out a financial need analysis form using one of the Multiple Data Entry (MDE) processors accepted by the school the student plans to attend. The FSEOG will be included as part of the student's total financial aid package developed through the school the student attends. Annual application is required.

Federal Work-Study Program (FWS)

This program was originally authorized by the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, is contained in Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965, and was reauthorized by the Higher Education Amendments of 1992. It provides jobs to students who qualify for financial assistance and encourages tham to participate in community service activities.

Eligibility: Applicant must be enrolled full or part time in an undergraduate or graduate program at an approved postsecondary institution. Student must be a citizen or a permanent resident of the United States.

Value: Amounts vary and are awarded solely on the basis of need as determined by the financial aid office of the institution. Eligible students may work up to the maximum number of hours per week set by the institution. Jobs usually range from 8 to 15 hours per week and pay at least the federal minimum wage. Employment may be on or off campus.

Application Procedure: Student files an application with the financial aid office of the institution he or she wishes to attend or attends. Many institutions use a financial need analysis form as the basic application for FWS. Recipients are selected by the financial aid office at the institution.

National Science Scholars Program (NSSP)

This is a federally-funded program of scholarships for undergraduates majoring in the physical, life, and computer sciences, mathematics or engineering at postsecondary institutions. The first National Science Scholars were chosen in September of 1991.

Eligibility: Graduating high school students or students who have obtained the GED may apply for the scholarship. Recipients must be U.S. citizens or resident nationals. They must have demonstrated outstanding academic achievement in an area of math or science and must declare an intent to major in such a course of study and pursue a career in the sciences.

Value: Two students from each Congressional District of North Carolina may be chosen annually. Half of the recipients must be female. Awards are valued at up to $5,000 per year, but may not exceed the cost of education. The award amount is subject in any year to Congressional appropriations and may be renewed, provided the recipient continues to meet the requirements of the scholarship.

Application Procedure: Applications are available from the high school guidance counselors of public and private high schools in North Carolina. A nominating committee at the state level selects at least four nominees from each Congressional District and submits them to the President of the United States. The President, in consultation with the Secretary of Education and the Director of the National Science Foundation, makes the final decision regarding scholars prior to January 1 of each fiscal year.

Veterans Educational Assistance Program

Persons who serve in the active duty Army, Air Force, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard, as well as members of the Army and Air National Guard and the five service components of the Selected Reserve, may earn entitlement to educational assistance benefits as a veteran or while on active duty or as a drilling Guard or Reservist.

Educational Assistance Benefits are available for Veterans, Active Duty Military, National Guard and Selected Reserve and in some instances their qualified dependents. Individuals must qualify based upon conditions and benefits in effect at the time of entry into the services and the kind of discharge issued upon separation. Service in the Army, Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, along with contributions, may establish eligibility. Service in the National Guard and the Reserve components of the five services on or after July 1, 1985 may also establish eligibility.

STATE-FUNDED PROGRAMS TO ASSIST STUDENTS

State-funded programs of financial assistance to North Carolina residents for postsecondary education may be classified as (1) programs designed to assure access to and choice among North Carolina's postsecondary educational institutions and (2) programs designed to provide a benefit for a special group of citizens such as the children of veterans. Responsibility of administration for Type 1 programs rests with the Board of Governors of The University of North Carolina; the North Carolina State Education Assistance Authority, an administrative unit of The University of North Carolina; or the Department of Community Colleges. Type 2 programs are the administrative responsibility of the primary agency serving the particular constituency. The programs shown in this section are listed by type.

This summary of financial aid resources will attempt to list only those types of financial assistance which are available to students throughout the state and can be used to attend most North Carolina institutions. Some types of financial assistance may be available for use only at the public or the private institutions, but because of the scope of the programs, they have been included. Also included are the various types of financial aid which may require the student to pursue a specific course of study or meet other general criteria to be eligible.

No attempt has been made to include the many forms of financial aid which are offered to students who are from a certain geographical area of the state or the types of financial aid available for students who plan to enroll in a specific postsecondary institution. To obtain information on local forms of financial aid, the student should contact local organizations, e.g., parent-teacher associations, unions, churches, civic and fraternal groups, professional organizations and industries in the area.

To obtain information about institutional-based programs, the student should contact the financial aid office of the institution(s) he/she is interested in attending.

North Carolina's Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP)

North Carolina's Federal Family Education Loan Program, also known as the North Carolina Insured Student Loan Program, offers three types of low interest loans insured by the North Carolina State Education Assistance Authority. Loan funds are provided by North Carolina banks and other financial institutions, the Assistance Authority, and other organizations in North Carolina; the loans are principally available through a central lender, College Foundation Inc. of Raleigh, North Carolina.

Federal Stafford Loans (Formerly Guaranteed Student Loans) -TYPE 1-

Eligibility: The student must be a United States citizen, National or permanent resident alien who is also a North Carolina resident attending an eligible in-state or out-of-state institution or an out-of-state student attending an eligible institution in North Carolina. Students must be enrolled at least half time during the loan period. Programs of study must lead to a degree or certificate. Students must have received a determination of eligibility or ineligibility for a Federal Pell Grant and, to qualify for the federal interest subsidy, must demonstrate financial need. An unsubsidized Federal Stafford Loan also is authorized with the same terms and conditions for students who cannot demonstrate financial need.

Value: Effective 7/1/93, students may borrow up to $2,625 per year prior to completion of first year of an undergraduate program; $3,500 for the second; and $5,500 for each academic year for the remainder of the undergraduate program. (Note: Lesser amounts are allowed for programs that are shorter then 30 weeks in length.) Graduate or professional students may borrow up to $7,500 for each academic year ($8,500 after 9/30/93). The aggregate limits, effective 7/1/93, are $23,000 for undergraduate study and $65,000 for graduate and professional students (including any undergraduate debt).

Application Procedure: To apply for a Federal Stafford Loan, a student planning to attend a college or vocational school in North Carolina should:

(1) Get from the high school guidance office or college financial aid office a financial need analysis form, such as the Application for Federal Student Assistance (AFSA), accepted by the school the student plans to attend;
(2) Complete the financial statement according to the instructions provided, mark the form to give permission for the information to be sent to the state financial aid agency, and list the college(s) to receive the need analysis reports;
(3) Send the completed financial statement to the processing agency at the address given on the form, in order to produce the required determination of eligibility for a Federal Pell Grant;
(4) Obtain a Federal Stafford Loan application-promissory note from any high school guidance office, college, or vocational school financial aid office in North Carolina (unless the school has indicated that it will send the proper form only after receiving the analysis of the family financial statement) or the central lender in North Carolina, College Foundation Inc. (CFI), 2100 Yonkers Road, P.O. Box 12100, Raleigh, NC 27605-2100 (919/821-4771).
(5) Send the completed application-promissory note to the financial aid office at the college or vocational school the student will attend. The institution will certify the application and send it directly to CFI or to the student to forward to CFI.

(6) CFI will notify the applicant and the college of the loan decision.

A student planning to attend an out-of-state college should follow the same procedure as for attending an in-state school. If there are special questions about obtaining a loan to enroll out of state, contact College Foundation Inc.

Repayment: For borrowers who qualify for the federal interest subsidy, the U.S. Department of Education pays the interest while the borrower is in school and prior to the beginning of the repayment period. For loans made to new borrowers after 9/30/92, the interest rate is a variable rate (not to exceed 9%) set annually for the 12-month period July 1-June 30; the rate applicable through 6/30/93 is 6.94%. For prior borrowers, loans are at the same rate as their prior loans, which may be at 7%, 8%, or 9% and for new borrowers after 6/30/88, the 8% rate increases to 10% in the fifth year of repayment. Repayment must begin six months after enrollment ceases, but deferments may be granted under a variety of conditions set forth in federal law.

Federal Supplemental Loans for Students (SLS) -TYPE 1-

These loans to students are a second part of North Carolina's Federal Family Education Loan Program and were formerly referred to as ALAS Loans or PLUS Loans to students. Principally available through a central lender, College Foundation Inc., these loans are for undergraduate independent students or graduate/professional students who need to supplement any Federal Stafford Loans and other resources available for their enrollment in a postsecondary institution. SLS borrowers must have a good credit record and do not have to demonstrate financial need; however, they must have received a determination of eligibility (or ineligibility) for both the need-based Federal Stafford Loans and Federal Pell Grant (Pell Grants are applicable only to undergraduate students).

Eligibility: The student must be a United States citizen, National or permanent resident alien who is also a North Carolina resident attending an eligible in-state or out-of-state institution or an out-of-state student attending an eligible institution in North Carolina. Students must be enrolled at least half time during the loan period. Programs of study must lead to a degree or certificate. Students who demonstrate eligibility for a Federal Stafford Loan must have applied for it before applying for the SLS; they must also have received a determination of eligibility or ineligibility for a Federal Pell Grant.

Value: Effective 7/1/93, undergraduate independent, graduate and professional students may borrow up to $4,000 per academic year prior to completion of the first two years of an undergraduate program and $5,000 per academic year for the remainder of the undergraduate program. (Note: Lesser amounts are allowed for programs that are shorter than 30 weeks in length.) Graduate or professional students may borrow up to $10,000 for each academic year. The aggregate limit for SLS is $23,000 for undergraduate study and $73,000 for graduate and professional students (including any undergraduate debt).

Interest Rate and Repayment Terms: The interest rate is a variable rate (not to exceed 11%) set annually for the 12-month period July 1-June 30. The rate effective through June 30, 1993 for loans made on or after 10/1/92 is 7.36%.

Repayment period begins when the loan is disbursed and repayments normally must begin within 60 days following the disbursement of final installment of the loan proceeds. However, if the borrower owes both Stafford and SLS, SLS repayment may be postponed for six months after enrollment ends to allow for coordination of repayment on both types of loans. The length of the repayment period depends on the total amount borrowed but normally does not exceed 10 years. Borrowers can obtain a combined payment covering multiple loans. Students may request deferment of payments on loan principal while enrolled for a sufficient academic workload; however, interest must be paid at least quarterly during deferment unless borrowers choose to authorize the lender to add the accrued interest to the loan principal (this is called capitalization). Capitalization will cost the borrowers more in interest charges over the life of the loan, but it provides an alternative if they are unable to pay the interest periodically during their enrollment.

Application Procedure: Before applying for an SLS, students must first have received a determination of eligibility or ineligibility for both Pell Grants and Federal Stafford Loans and, if eligible, must have applied for the interest-subsidized Federal Stafford Loan. Information and application forms for Federal SLS are available from College Foundation Inc., 2100 Yonkers Road, P.O. Box 12100, Raleigh, NC 27605-2100 (919/821-4771), or from any college or vocational school in North Carolina. College Foundation Inc. will notify you and your college of the loan decision.

Federal PLUS Loans to Parents -TYPE 1-

These loans to parents are the third part of North Carolina's Federal Family Education Loan Program. Principally available through a central lender, College Foundation Inc., these loans are for parents of dependent students enrolled in either undergraduate or graduate programs of study. Federal PLUS Loans do not require the determination of eligibility for Federal Pell Grant or Federal Stafford Loan; however, parent borrowers may not have an adverse credit history and must show the ability to meet the monthly payments on the educational loan.

Eligibility: The borrower and the benefiting student must be a United States citizen, National, or permanent resident alien. The legal residence of the borrower must be North Carolina unless the benefiting student is enrolled in an eligible institution in North Carolina. The student must be enrolled at least half time in a degree or certificate program in an eligible college or vocational school. PLUS Loan checks must be made co-payable to the parent borrower and the college.

Value: Effective 7/1/93, a parent of a dependent student may borrow up to the difference in the estimated cost of attendance and other student financial aid for each son or daughter meeting the eligibility requirements.

Interest Rate and Repayment Terms: The interest rate is a variable rate (not to exceed 10%) set annually for the 12-month period July 1-June 30. The rate effective through June 30, 1993 for loans made on or after 10/1/92 is 7.36%. Repayment period begins when the loan is disbursed, and repayments must begin within 60 days following the disbursement of the loan proceeds. The length of the repayment period depends on the total amount borrowed but normally does not exceed 10 years. Parent borrowers can obtain a combined payment covering multiple loans.

Application Procedure: Parents are advised to consider determining first if the student will qualify for an interest-subsidized Federal Stafford Loan. To apply for the Federal Stafford Loan, the student must complete and file a financial need analysis form accepted by the school the student plans to attend, so that the student's college or vocational school can evaluate eligibility for a Federal Pell Grant as well as the Federal Stafford Loan. Request Federal PLUS Loan application and information from College Foundation Inc., P.O. Box 12100, Raleigh, NC 27605-2100 (919/821-4771), the high school guidance office, or from the North Carolina school the student plans to attend. College Foundation Inc. notifies applicants of approval of loans.
